THE NAHP'S JOSÉ MARTÍ AWARDS

The José Martí Awards are named after José Julián Martí Pérez (January 28, 1853-May 19, 1895), a Cuban poet, essayist, journalist, revolutionary philosopher, professor, translator, political theorist and publisher. Through his writings and political activities he became a symbol for Cuba's struggle for independence from Spain. He also fought against the threat of United States expansionism in Latin America. During his lifetime, his writings were published in numerous newspapers, magazines and journals in most Latin America countries and the USA. In the USA he wrote for publications in both Spanish and English.

With these Awards we seek to both honor the memory of José Martí, a tireless advocate who clearly saw the enormous power of PRINT and honor those editors, publishers, photographers, designer and marketing professionals who continue today to use the POWER of the written word, impactful photos and illustrations, and creative design to reach, impact, and motivate readers across the USA and beyond.

These awards, started in 1989 by the National Association of Hispanic Publications, are one of the oldest and by far the largest Hispanic media awards in the USA. They have followed many key trends over the years: as new editorial sections have been added; as new technologies have been added; and as marketing has evolved. The awards have helped advertisers find the publications that are making the RIGHT MOVES in terms of reaching consumers.

In 2016 the awards committee created the José Martí PRIMERO Awards. They are designed to help elevate recognition of Latino publications and digital media excellence to the level their excellence merits. These are the BEST OF THE BEST in Hispanic media. We ask that you join us in helping GROW the José Martí Awards and Hispanic Print across the country.

Publications have used their winning awards to salute their competent staff, to help build their readership and, most importantly, to satisfy existing advertisers and bring in new advertisers.

In 2018, I look forward to seeing all of you at this year's annual conference.

I encourage all Latino publications who are proud of the publications you produce to enter,
